CARDONNA MAKES HIS PLEA.

TESTIFYING THAT HE KILLED TWO MEN IN SELF-DEFENCE,

The Negro Never in Trouble with the Law Belore-Pleaty of Witnesses to Charac-ter-Two Policemen Swear Against Him.

On Wednesday on the trial of John Carroll Cardonna, the Spanish negro, in the Court of Over and Terminer, for the murder of Daniel Techan and Thomas Byrnes, at 12 Thompson street, on Aug. 1, 1887, Policeman Somerindyke, who arrested Cardonna, testifled that the prisoner did not say a word from the time he was apprehended in his room until he reached the police station.

Yesterday Policeman Maloney testified that he got to the scene just as Somerindyke brought his prisoner to the street from 12

"Somerindyke said to me," said Maloney, "'This is the man who shot him.' 'Yes,' said Cardonna, 'that's the way I'll drop them every time they bother me.' Cardonna's voice trembled, and he seemed excited."

On cross-examination Maloney testifled that was an Irishman and a Catholic, and that he had told no one what he had heard the prisoner say until he told it at the District Attor-

Policeman Noll testified that he came up in time to hear Somerindyke say, "This fellow shot a man." Noll asked why he did it, and Cardonna replied, "That's the way to fix them when they bother you."

Cardonna's voice was quiet, Noll testified, and he appeared quite cool. The body of Techan. where Officer Maloney was, lay about twentyfive feet from the spot where Cardonna was standing when he spoke these words. Noil told mobody what he heard Cardonna say until he as summoned to the District Attorney's office, Mrs. Byrnes, the widow of Thomas Byrnes and sister of Daniel Teehan, testified that about an hour before the shooting she met Cardonna on the stairs. He pulled a pistol and pointed it at her. Her husband told her not to mind. that Cardonna would not shoot her. She never spoke to the prisoner.

tify to the good character of the prisoner.

John H. Reed of Dale, Reed & Cooley, Solomon Moses, M. Y. Plasick, Elijah S. Parkor, Superintendent of Agencies for the Mutual Life, and F. Ascher had known him as the man who walted upon them in the barber shop at 4 Thomas street. They had been attracted by his courteous manners and industrious habits, and more than one had made inquiries in regard to his character after the time of the Rilling. Mrs. Margaretta Fossenden of 152 West Forty-fourth street and her hu-band, a retired merchant, testified that they had known Cardonna ten or twelve years, and that he had been in their employ as waiter. They had full confidence in him. John Dayton of 754 Fifth avenue had Cardonna in his employ as a house servant for two years. He took a great interest in Cardonna, whose hablis were exemplary.

The prisoner was then put upon the stand to testify in his own behalf. He is telow the average size and weight, and was neatly dressed in a black diagonal cutaway and plaid troupers. His complexion is that of a mulatto, his hair, which was carefully dressed, is jet black. His sees are small and dark. His head is small, but well shaped, the forehead being full and straight. There is no trace of the negro's accent in his pronunciation.

Cardonna said that he was 26 years old. He was born in Spain, his father being a full-blooded Spaniard and his mother a mulatto. He married his wife about six years ago, and for over five years he lived at 12 Thompson street. They have three children. He took his wife to live among white people for her sake, because he believed she would be treated better there than if she lived with colored people. He had never carried a weapon until the day of the killing, though he had agreed to sell. His rooms were on the second floor of the rear house, and the Byrnes family occupied the first floor.

When I went home about 6% o'clock P. M. to get a dog which he had agreed to sell. His rooms were on the second floor of the rear house, and the Byrnes family occupied th tify to the good character of the prisoner. John H. Reed of Dale, Reed & Cooley, Solomon house, and the Byrnes family occupied the first floor.

"When I went home that evening," said Cardonna, "I found Mr. Byrnes standing on the stoop of the rear building. He had a hammer in his hand, and he swore at me when I came up. I wen' to myroom, where I found my wife crying. She said Mrs. Byrnes had been calling her bad names, I said, "Bella, I don't know about this." She said she would go down stairs and ask Mr. Byrnes to come up and speak with me. She went down and I heard Mrs. Byrnes slam the door in my wife's face, I heard Byrnes cursing me from the stoop below. I looked out of my window and asked why he was swearing at me. He said, 'You dirthy nager, if you come down here I'll cut the heart out of you."

if you come down here I'll cut the heart out of you."

The prisoner gave a strong Irish accent to Byrnes's words, and Judge Lawrence had to use his ravel to restore order.

'I stayed in my room about ten minutes," continued Cardonna. "Mr. Byrnes had then left the stoop. I took the dog under my arm and nut my pistel in an inside waistead pocket. I was airaid because of what Mr. Byrnes had said, and because if knew that all the other tenants would sympathize with him. I saw Mrs. Byrnes at a window as I went out. She had a hammer, and she said to me: 'Get out, you dirthy nager, or I'll kneek your head off. I met. Byrnes outside. I went up to him and I met Byrnes outside. I went up to him and said: 'Mr. Byrnes. I don't want to have trouble with you, but I wish you would make your wife let my wife alone.' He said: 'You nigger, when you come back I'll give you your own blood to drink.'

you come back I'll give you your own blood to drink."

I had walked down the street a little way when two boys stopped me and said. Look out, Mister, he'll kill you. I turned and saw Byrnes close behind me. I told him to leave me alone and attend to his own business. After I had taken the dog to the man who wanted to buy him. I started for home by a roundabout way. When I got in front of 12 Thompson street Byrnes and Teehan were standing there talking. Byrnes said. Here comes the nager. let's murder him, and the other man cried. Be Jasus, let's sing him. Byrnes caught me by the collar and kicked me, while Teehan struck me in the neck and also gave me a black eye. I was hurt most by kicks and blows in the stomach. I said. Stop, or I'll shoot you. They came at me again. I unbuttoned my walstooat, pulled out the revolver, and fired, first at Teehan, then at Byrnes. They still rushed at me, and I fired at each a second time.

"When the shooting was over I put the pistol."

first at Teehan, then at Byrnes. They still rushed at me, and I fired at each a second time.

"When the shooting was over I put the pison back in my pocket, and said: 'When the officers want me I'll be up in my room.' I went to my room, took off my watch, gave it to my wife, and sat down to wait for the officers. When one came I made no resistance."

"Did you say to the officer 'That's the way to fix them when they bother you'?" asked Lawyer Palmer.

"I didn't open my mouth to nobody." cried Cardonna, excitedly, "It's false, I hope I may never move out of this place if that isn't false."

"Did you know that one of the bullets took effect in Byrnes's back?" asked Assistant District Attorney Davis.
"No, sir: it could not. He had his face toward me and his hands up."
One of the bullets hit Byrnes in the back just below the neck. The case will reach the jury to-day.

A HORSE UP A TREE

And He Seemed Better Satisfied Than While

Hauling Ice Up a Steep Hill. NORWICH, Feb. 16 .- Norwich town has the only horse in the world that has been up a tree. He is an old blind horse, and has passed to the stage when it is not of much consequence to ice for the Norwich Town Woollen Company ice house, which is on the steep side of the Yantic River, he backed off the 25-foot embank ment and lodged in the upper boughs of an old elm. He rested there easily, his fore feet dangling over one limb and his hind legs hanging over another, while on his face was an expression that was interpreted to mean that wherever he was he was satisfied that his job had become a better one than hauling fee up a vertical tackle. It was not easy to tell what to do with him, and twenty men gathered about the trunk of the elm and thought. Some one finally hit on an expedient, A man went aloft and fastened a rope to the tree top, came down, and thirteen men took hold of the rope at a safe distance from the tree. Then a woodman went to work to fell the tree. The rest of the party waited to see the horse and tree come down. The chopper cut the trunk half through, the weight of the horse bore the ton downward, the descent the safe was resulted and the safe was resulted and has safely lowered to the river ice. The horse was led around the ambankment, hitched to the tackle again, and his job of hauling ice was resumed. ment and lodged in the upper boughs of an old Massachusetts Labor Statistics.

Boston, Feb. 16 .- The Hon. Carroll D.

Wright, in charge of the Labor Bureau, has just fluished an investigation of unemployed labor in Massuchusetts. He finds that out of a total of 816,470 persons employed in gainful occupations in this State, 241,589, or 29.59 per cent., were unemployed at their principal oc-cupation on an average of 4.11 months during the year 1885. Of the unemployed males, the occupation of 66 per cent, was manufacturing.

814 per cent. agriculture, 11 per cent. day labor 414 per cent. trade, 4 per cent. transportation

4½ per cent, trade, 4 per cent, transportation, and 2 per cent, fisheries. Of the unemployed females, the occupation of 78 per cent, was munufacturing, and that of only 6 per cent, of domestic service. The average length of idleness for the year was 39-10 months. The idleness was caused on the average: ½ of a month by repairs and improvements, 2½ months by slack trade, and only 11-50th of a month by strikes and lockouts. Of the unemployed persons 60 per cent, were native born. Only 822 persons were unemployed during the entire year. By a purely mathematical calculation the result of this investigation would indicate that all the products of manufactures could have been secured by steady work for 301 working days of 5,04 hours each, if this steady work could have been distributed equally among all the persons engaged in manufactures; while all the remunerative work of the State, of whatever kind, if it could have been distributed equally among the entire working nopulation, could have been accomplished in 307 working days, averaging 8,99 hours per day.

TWO TREASURERS MOVE ON.

They Take All the Cash in the Box Office. With Them.

Two treasurers of strolling play companies were reported to the Williamsburgh police yes terday as missing, and as having taken with them all the money received during the week. Tex being short for Texas, manager of a company playing "The Scout of the Yellowstone" pany playing "The Scout of the Yellowstone" at the People's Theatre in Montrose avenue and Leonard street, in making his complaint against his absconding treasurer, said:
"I am a real scout, having served with Custer. When our troupe busted, after a two weeks' organization, we hoofed it to New York, and reorganized on the cooperative plan. The fellow who was treasurer remained with us. Now he's the fellow that's skipped. Last night when I went to the box office for the receipts, for we divide what's taken in pro rata. I found a note from him on the desk. He wrote that the money would just pay his salary, and he bid me good night. I'd like to have him arrested."

The other absconding treasurer is the young man who took in the cash for Manager James Crowley of the Bijou Theatre. Manager Crowley, reporting his disappearance, said:
"My stage carpenter demanded $12 of me on Wednesday night, and had a fight with me when I tried to explain things to him. After the little row I went to the box office and found that the man had shut up the shop and skipped."

of Mrs. Bell, corroborated, in part, her daughter's story.

Mr. Bell was led to the witness chair. He asserted that he had never raised his hand or any weapon against his wife. He said that the only weapons he ever had were a penkulfe and a razor. The latter he always kept in a drawer. His wife, on the other hand, always kept a revolver around. Upon the assumption that he was insane he was put in the assumption that he was insane he was put in the asylum, but was discharged after eight days. He characterized the testimony of his wife and her witnesses as absolutely false. He is hopelessly in debt, he said, and all the money he receives is $682.52 as the income of his father's estate. He has been blind since he was 6 years old.

Charles H. Butler testified that Bell was a mild-tempered man, and that the occurrences referred to by the wife and her mother never took place.
